

Reality Check – Step 5

This example is on outcomes of the user testing of the first prototype made in the Design phase. This is an example from running a UCD Sprint for making the ucdsprint.com website.

Example:

- Photo of the post-it notes table

Example of an analysis of the results from prototype testing

	User 1	User 2	User 3	User 4	User 5
Task 1	Considered that the way to view the average should be not clear	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product
Task 2	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product
Task 3	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product
Task 4	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product
Task 5	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product
Overall	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product	That's a way to look the average product